Who's Going to Bed? Fun things to do!

Make a bedtime box

One fun way to make bedtime a little calmer is to put together a box filled with activities that will help your child wind down. Put in things that your child finds interesting and calming. These could be activities like jigsaws, colouring or playdough.

Here are some more things from Tiny Happy People you can try to bring a bit more calm to this time of the day...

Sock Puppet. All you need is imagination!

You can make a sock puppet or use everyday items from around the house to represent the different characters in the story. Retell the story together. Wait for your child to respond and let them lead the conversation. This will build their confidence and help them to take turns. Try putting on funny voices for different characters - your child will love it!
